Arrowsmith left her wharf here yesterday morning for Co-lonial Beach she had over 400 people on board, composed mostly of women and children from this city and Washington. Everything went smoothly until Lower Cedar Point was reached and a turn wrs being made to cross to Colonial Beach, when three heavy reports, following in quick succession, were heard. The noise was like that of a gun, and the boat came to with a suddenness and force that nearly shook people off their seats. Following this came a rush of steam with a light hissing sound. Immediately a panic seized the passengers; women became terror stricken and the children clung closely to their paby their loud cries. Capt. Entwisle, as soon as he heard the first report, went among the people and told them quietly that there was no occasion for fear; his officers and crew following in like manner did everything to suppress excitement and suc-ceeded fairly well. The band was ordered ceeded fairly well. The band was ordered to play a lively tune in the hope of allaying the fears of the passengers. The racks where the life preservers were stored, however, were soon emptied of them by the people, and in a brief space of time they were seen fitted to the bodies of men, women and children. Capt. Entwiste immediately had the applier tempted while the ately had the auchor dropped, while the engineer opened the steam escape valves to make the boilers safe. A quick glance at the machinery showed that the cause of the accident was due to the breaking of the cross head and the link connections of the walking beam, which knocked a hole in the cylinder. Had the accident occurred on the descending instead of the ascending stroke, a hole would have been stove in the bottom of the steamer, which would have ended, doubtless, in the loss of life. Capt. Michael White, of the steamer Bishop, being but a short distance astern, saw that something was wrong with the Arrowsmith. He ordered Pilot William Luckett to bring the steamer close up to the disabled vessel. In a short space of time the Bishop was alongside the injured steamer. The presence of the Bishop restored the confidence of the terribly excited and frightened people, as they realized that help was at hand. The gang plank was hardly laid when the people on the Arrowsmith made a rush for the Bishop, Capts. Entwisle and White stood by the gangway and did their utmost to make the people pass over in an orderly way, but it was no use. Many men jumped over the rails, and the women crowded each other in their desperate efforts to get on the Bishop. The rush was so great that the two captains several times were nearly forced overboard. The passengers were hardly removed when the steam rushed through the engine room and soon filled the upper deck of the Arrowsmith. The Bishop took the passengers to Lower Ceder Point, which was close by. No one was injured, but it was a miracle that an accident did not happen at the gang plank. Quite a number of the men and women did not regain their senses unand women did not regain their senses until a long time after they were ashore. One large stout built Irish woman was so overjoyed at her rescue that she hugged Capt. White repeatedly and showered many a "God bless you" on him. Capt. Entwisle and his officers and crew worked hard to calm the fear of their passengers, and by their efforts saved several people from do-ing many very rash and foolish things. The Bishop, on arriving at this port, hailed the tug Templar and sent her down to the assistance of the Arrowsmith. When the Bishop reached Washington, shortly before 10 o'clock last night, the nine hundred people on board held a meeting that the Arrowsmith had sunk with all on The accident was caused by a flaw in the cross-head, and not to racing, as was at first reported. There was no occasion for carrying extra steam as the Northampton was some distance shead of the Arrowsmith and the Bishop behind. The piston was being forced upward, and the cross-tree gave way, which bent the piston, damaging the cylinder and otherwise injuring the machinery. Engineer Fox was standing on the cylinder engaged in oiling the piston when the accident to the engine room below, a distance of fifteen feet. He was uninjured. The Arexamined by Mr. W. S. Moore, and the extent of the damage cannot now be excertained, nor is it known whether the boat be made to place another boat on the Colo-

and passed resolutions of thanks to Capt. White, Pilot Wm. Luckett, Engineer Louis

Thornton, Mate John Luckett, and the brave crew for their valiant work and time-ly rescue. Capt. Entwisie and his officers and men were also remembered. The ru-mor at one time prevailed in Washington nial Beach route.

The steamer J. W. Thompson which was in the vicinity at the time of the accident offered to take the passengers of the Arrow-smith over to Colonial Beach and bring them back on her trip up the river to day, wished to return home last night. END OF THE MURDER TRIAL,-As stated in the GAZETTE, the case of Douglas, Wesley and Alfred Kidwell and Alfred Barrett, charged with the murder of George Wertenbaker, a brakeman on the A. & W. R. R., at St. Asaph Junction, on the 5th inst., was given to the jury yesterday evening shortly after 4 o'clock, and the judge announced night. The court room was then cleared and the jury allowed to remain there on actorday. count of the heat. They took supper, as usual, at the Opera House restaurant, and digitely proceeded to the court room and resumed his seat upon the bench. Messrs.

clerk, Mr. J. S. Beach, then asked the jury if they had agreed, whereupon Mr. F. L. Brockett, who had been chosen foreman, replied that they had and handed the clerk the following:

The verdict was read by the clerk and received without any marked demonstra-tion by the spectators, after which Mr. Greene thanked the jury on behalf of the accused. Alfred and Wesley Kidwell, and Alfred Barrett were then discharged, and Douglass Kidwell turned over to an officer to be taken to juil to be taken to jail.

Before ordering the discharge of the par-ties on trial Judge Meade, addressing them, said:

"I am about to order your discharge from arrest and restoration to liberty and your friends. Heying been acquitted, it is not for me to lecture you or comment upon your conduct in connection with the offence you have been charged with. But it is my right in ordering your release, in all kindness, for your own sake and for the sake of those dear to you, to urge in all the future you will keep in mind the danger of the accursed intoxicating cup that has been instrumental in involving you in such fearful trouble."

The verdict of the jury, last night and to.

The verdict of the jury, last night and to-day, has been variously criticised, both fa-vorably and adversely, but the most prev-alent opinion is that it was in accordance with the facts as brought out by the evidence in the case.

dence in the case.

It is said that the prisoners' counsel would not have consented to a trial at this term of the court had they not felt certain that they had evidence which would result in an acquittal of their clients.

To dry Wm. Kidwell, one of the accused, who had elected to be tried separately, was discharged from custody, the Common wealth having entered a nolle pros. in his case.

BISCOE SENTENCED.-Ex-Judge Magru der, counsel for defense, not having filed his exceptions within the time allowed, the appeal in the case of Biscoe, the murderer of Captain Dixon, was considered to be abandoned, and Judge Stone at Port Tobacco on Tuesday, sentenced the prisoner to be hanged. When asked if he had anything to say why the sentence of death should not be passed, the prisoner answered: "No, only I don't want the sentence of death passed upon me." The judge said, "You have had two trials and two juries have, without any hesitancy, found you guilty of the murder of Captain Dixon. The court has heard every word of the testimony and views it as an atrocious crime, without any justification whatever or excuse." After being taken back to jail Biscoe said he had never yet told the truth of the killing, and that no one would ever know now, unless it would stop his being hung. He said he We will offer to the public au immense reduction was sure he would have been out long ago had he been a white man, but being poor and black he had no friends except his lawyers, who had done all they could for him, and Sheriff Simpson, who had acted fairly and kindly to him.

CUT IN THE THROAT.-Persons who arrived here from down the river to-day re-nort that a difficulty occurred at Colonial Beach on Tuesday evening between Mr. M. Bossart of this city and a Mr. Howard, who was employed as a policeman at that place, neer Fox was standing on the cylinder en-gaged in oiling the piston when the accident occurred, and was thrown by the concussion Howard had been employed by Mr. Bossart to the engine room below, a distance of fifteen feet. He was uninjured. The Arrowsmith arrived here at an early hour this morning in tow of the tug Templar. The two men met when Bossart asked Howard what he was doing there. The latter replied that he was at a public place and also an officer, when hot words ensued fol-lowed by blows. Bossart then drew a knife will be repaired here or elsewhere. The girls claim that Kendall met them in the Smithsonian Grounds on after 4 o'clock, and the judge announced that he would be in readiness to receive the verdict at any time up to 9 o'clock that watchman.
